

The idea which saved the planet

Do you want to know what I use to think about daily? It's the topic about saving our earth that concerns me the most. Something that comes into my mind is that we need to change the current situation of our lifestyle to be able to save our planet.

While talking to my friends about how to protect our earth during our last meeting a great idea came to my mind. I thought of creating a robot which could collect all the enormous waste people cause. The best about it is that it has the function to recycle the trash it took directly. As you can imagine, this would be the best solution to overcome one of the biggest problems our nature has.

Another version that came to my mind is the water robot. This type should be used in the water and its tasks include cleaning and picking up all the plastic that swims around to start its recycling process. Most important about it, is that the lives of many water animals would be saved.

This idea of mine might be the beginning of a safer planet. This idea was not just created then and represented now, this idea might be the rescue for the future. If we don't start doing something now, we won't be able to save our planet in the future.
